EPSOM'S GRANDLY SUCCESSFUL MEETING.

The Coronation Cup's Remarkable Field of Starters Sunstar Not Broken Down.

London, Eng., June 5.—Derby week of 1911 has followed its predecessors into history with the generally conceded record of having exceeded all in point of attendance, brilliancy of racing and well-sustained interest from start to finish. King George was in attendance each day and Queen Mary was present on Derby and Oaks days, the general desire to see these eminent persons in the democratic freedom of the race track contributing in no small degree to attract the enormous crowds that daily covered the broad expanses of Epsom Downs.

That Sunstar should win the Derby was fore-ordained, and the ease with which he did it was of the same measure as that of his triumph in the Two Thousand Guineas. In each case it was an easy win by two lengths, with Steffast second. Similar came back to the weighing stand after the bard broken down. But he was not seriously injured, having either interfered slightly or been scraped lightly by another horse. He will be pointed for St. Leger honors and may not start again until the big race arrives that will determine whether or not he is to become one of the select band of Triple Crown winners. His career so far makes it manifest that he is greatly superior to our other three-year-olds. Although his owner is not a popular turfman Sunstar's victory was warmly applauded, a British tribute to a proved good horse. Stedfast's ill fortune in being forced to put up with the barren honors of second place in two such great races has brought out many expressions of sympathy with his popular owner, Lord Derby.

second place in two such great races has brought out many expressions of sympathy with his popular owner, Lord Derby.

From a strictly racing point of view the Coronation Cup was really the greatest race of the meeting. It was truly a conflict of giants of the track, Lemberg, Swynford, Bachelor's Double, Buckwheat, Charles O'Malley, Bronzino, Greenback and Yellow Slave forming a remarkable field of which Bachelor's Double was equal favorite with Lemberg at 9 to 4. When the French champion, Boiard, won the Gold Cup at Ascot in 1874, there was a good deal of dissension as to the aggregate value of the six horses which took part in the race, which was generally estimated as about $250,000. Of course, the value of bloodstock has increased enormously since those days, and it is not too much to write that were the eight runners for the Coronation Cup sent into the sales ring in the course of the next two or three months, they would make considerably more than twice that amount. This event has always been fortunate ha attracting animals of the highest class, but all records in this respect were broken here, and it may be a very long time before we are again treated to another such interesting race. There was Lemberg, winner of the Derby; Swynford, a hero of the St. Leger; Bachelor's Double, a representative of the very highest handicap form, which has already carried off a City and Suburban, a Royal Hunt Cup and a "Jubilee." Even omitting these three the field would have been a great one, for each of the other five have at one time or another performed really well in the best of company. Lemberg has never looked better in his life, and certainly never ran so well. As the first four finished within about a length, it might be thought that the battle was a desperately close one, but any judge of such matters who viewed the race impartially will realize that Lemberg had a good seven pounds the best of it. In the last furlong Dillon was standing up in his stirrups, and never had to ask his mount for any

THIRTY LEADING MONEY-WINNING OWNERS OF 1911

Sam Hildreth is safely lodged in the post of leader of American winning owners and has amassed a fairly respectable total of stable earnings, opportunities considered. It is quite probable that he will remain the leader to the end of the racing year, but it is more than probable that he cannot win anything like his great total of $152,645 for 1910. John W. Schorr is doing very well this year and is second in the list, with R. N. Smith third. T. C. McDowell has afteady won more than he did in 1910 and is likely to do better still. The present stable earnings of the thirty leading owners are as follows:

LATONIA GETS SOME RAIN

TRACK CONDITIONS CHANGE IN MIDST OF AFTERNOON'S RACING.

Star Jasmine Easily Disposes of Opposition in Chief Offering of Mediocre Card-Handzaretta Takes Race in Which Royal Captive Disappoints.

Cincinnati, O., June 14.—A severe wind storm which came up simultaneously with the starting of the third race, caused a panicky feeling among the spectators at Latonia this afternoon and obscured the view of the running of the horses for a period after they had passed the half-mile ground. The air cleared when rain fell heavily just as the horses were finishing and for the remainder of the afternoon the wet weather continued. The last three races were run over a maddy course and this circumstance caused the tardy withdrawals of Zienap and Summer Night from the closing dash, from which Font had been scratched early in the day. Today's attendance was again of generous proportions, among the visitors being members of the New York, Brooklyn and Cincinnati base fall teams. Today's card was of mediocre quality and brought but few of the stars into action. The sport, however, was interesting and the results pleasing to the majority of the spectators. The big operators were in rare form and managed to land on four of the afternoon's winners, their principal disappointment coming with the running of the third race, in which Royal Captive failed to run up to expectations. Aside from Royal Captive's disappointing showing, the performance of Handzaretta was sensational. This moody racer was away last, being practically left, but came with a rush in the last sixteenth to win in the last stride.

Star Jasmine had little serious opposition in the fourth race, Dilatory and Foretop offering the greatest contention. H. K. Knapp scored his second success of the meeting when Petronius took the closing purse in handy style, with Tom Bigbee in second place.

cess of the meeting when Petronius took the closing purse in handy style, with Tom Bigbee in second place.

Dutch Rock was favored by the slippery going that prevailed when the fifth race was called and lasted to beat Discontent, with Oracle, the favorite, far back and floundering. McCreary took a band of useful youngsters into camp in the opener and Ben Lasca made a show of his opponents in the second. County Tax was shipped with Governor Gray to Hamilton. James S. Everman, who went with the horses, said they would both be returned here by Monday next.

Jockey A. Burton has contracted to ride for Amos Turney and left for Hamilton today. J. S. Ward shipped a three-year-old maiden to the Canadian track to be handled by Mr. Turney. Jockey Steele was another to leave for Hamilton during the day. Sona's entry will in future be barred here on account of her bad actions at the barrier. The same restriction applied against her last winter at Juarez. Assistant starter Harry Morrissey, who is now supervising the training of Donau, is said to be working wonders with the Gerst horse and has him as tractable as a lamb. He worked four and actually ran as if he relished the task.

Carl Mitchell, a star jockey of the long ago, who has ridden abroad as well as on American courses, was among today's arrivals with several horses that he owns and will campaign here.

Lon Jones' string of racers, headed by Azylade, arrived from Louisville this afternoon.

The successful three-horse combination, consisting of Star Jasmine, Dutch Rock and Petronius, paid $112.10 for each $2. The two-horse combination of McCreary and Ben Lasca paid $57.80.

RESERVATIONS FOR COEUR D'ALENE STALLS.

Spokane, Wash., June 14.—The clatter of the hammer at the Lake City track is like music in the cars of Superintendent W. W. Finn of the Coeur d'Alene Fair and Racing Association, for a large corps of carpenters is at work on the grandstand and stalls of the new mile track near Post Falls, Idaho. Over eighty of the 560 stalls to be erected at the Idaho track are in readiness, while much of the preliminary work on the grandstand has been completed. The grandstand alone, 250x70 feet, with a capacity of 4,700, requires 216,000 feet of lumber, while the stalls and fence account for 199,000 more, bringing the grand total up to 415,000. A feature of the grandstand will be the inclined aisles, which will eliminate the steep steps seen in so many stands.

Probably the biggest stable to be shipped here for the Lake City meeting will be that of Irving H. Wheatcroft, who will ship thirty-four of the St. James Stable horses to the new track.

H. G. Bedwell will campaign thirty-two horses during the meeting, while Wade McLemore will invade this section with a string of seven. Earl Linnell, owner of Black Mate and other good horses, who is running eight horses at Lagoon, has also reserved stalls.

Reports from British Columbia indicate that 300 horses will invade Idaho from that section.

GOVERNOR GRAY'S SIRE.

Cincinnati, O., June 14.—Jake Marklein extracted about as much satisfaction as anyone from Governor Gray's sensational Latonia Derby victory, for it was he who developed Garry Herrmann, the sire of the great gelding and raced him successfully through his two-year-old form. Garry Herrmann was one of a bunch of yearlings Mr. Marklein selected when he was training a string of horses for L. V. Bell. He paid $750 for the son of Esher and later on during that season, when Mr. Bell decided to quit raeing and sell all of his horses, Mr. Marklein purchased the sire of Governor Gray for $450. Mr. Marklein later sold Garry Herrmann for $25,000 as a three-year-old, and the late Capt. S. S. Brown of Pittsburg finally became his owner.

When Captain Brown died the great horse was offered at public sale at Lexington and Capt. Harry Brown bought him in, after J. E. Widener of Philadelphia had carried him to $13,000. The following season he developed a ringbone and when offered for sale the next autumn he only brought something over $200. Realizing that he would probably sell for a small sum, as he had become unpopular as a sire, Mr. Marklein hurried to Lexington to buy him, as he had in view the presentation of the borse to his namesake. When he found that the horse had a ringbone he made no effort to secure him.

Garry Herrmann is now in the stud in Manitoba. As a two-year-old performer he was more consistent than his noted son, but as a three-year-old Governor Gray outshines his sire by far. Mr. Marklein says, however, that he would never have done so had Garry Herrmann trained soundly at that age.

William Gerst of Nashville is seeing his first racing of the season at Latonia. Pressure of business kept him away from the earlier meetings. Mr. Gerst is greatly disappointed by the showing of his Kentucky Derby winner Donau. He had hoped to see him in condition this season, but the horse seems to have deteriorated into a racer of little account.

CONFORMATION OF FAMOUS RACERS.

"Good race horses come in all shapes," is an axiom of racing that no one will dispute. But that certain conformations are better adapted to certain kinds of racing we have abundant evidence. We can prove nothing by citing exceptions to a rule, unless the exceptions are sufficiently numerous to weaken it. Race horses come in many shapes, the thick-set, sturdy Bonnie Scotlands, the light fleshed, wiry Leamingtons, high on the leg and short in body like Ormonde, and long and low like The Illused; some galloping with a straight knee like Grinstead, others all knee-action like George Kinney, or with action completely from behind, like Donald Macdonald.

The type of race horses for sprinting and staying differs materially. In general, the thick, heavy-muscled horse has greater speed. We often hear expression arising from the old days of quarter horse racing and which means large, round muscles, full and prominent. For sudden efforts they are successful and they go follows extended from the leverage, or too coarse in texture. On the other hand, the type of horse whose muscles are not so prominent, but whose conformation is of the angular better stayer than the round, muscular one.

The famous filly Correction (a sister to Domino, and since the dam of Yankee), was one of the most conspicuous examples. While not what could be velopment of quarters and gaskins was so remarkable as to attract the attention of the most casual observer. She was the fleetest mare of ther day up to the property of the date effort. We have never had a family of race horses that surpassed that of Bonnie Scotland in this respect. They were mostly of the round, compact type, tremendously muscled, and, while not so renowned for stamina as for speed, they won more races than any other strain of their day. Bramble, Luke Blackburn, George Kinney, Bancroft, Balance All, Glidelia, Bootjack, etc., won race after race in heavy ground until "the Bonnie Scotlands for the mid" became a proverb among horsemen.

That angular, leggy and long-muscled horses are usually bad performers in heavy, muddy ground is a fact well known to most horsemen. The fact is such horses are naturally long striders. If the going is muddy, a long striding horse slips, and fear of falling, causes him to shorten his stride. Thus, deprived of his natural advantage, he loses his race. The Bonnie Scotlands were usually stocky, short-legged horses, and, with their great muscle and short, rapid stride, they fairly revelled in mud, and, as a baseball friend put it, "they never needed rain checks."

Luke Blackburn had more muscle than any horse short-legged horses, and, with their great muscle and as a baseball friend put it, "they never needed rain checks."

Luke Blackburn had more muscle than any horse we can remember. His speed and energy were amazing, but he managed to stay a mile and a half. Alarm was a short-necked, stocky, heavily-muscled horse, but he could not stay beyond a mile. His son, Himyar, less heavily muscled, could carry his speed further. Himyar's son, Domino, as already noted, was not a stayer, but his son, Commando, a rather coarse colt of more length and liberty, seemed able to race over a distance. Glemmore was a muscular horse, but in a four-mile heat race at Coney Island some years since he developed a clear case of tetanus and could hardly gallop-something we have never seen a long-muscled horse do.

Of course, there are notable exceptions. We have seen large horses and heavily-muscled horses which could stay as well as sprint. The French horse Mortemer we thought one of the largest and most powerful horses we ever saw. He won at all distances from five furlongs to two miles and a half. Tom Ochitree was a mammont for size and a Herenles for muscle, and though speed was his fortenees of the same and the stay as well as sprint. The French horse heavily stay as well as sprint, and so was Peter Pan, Emperor of Norfolk, Springbok and Sysonby. Burgomaster was one of the most massive colts of recent times, but he stayed the Belmont course. So did Bowling Brook, but he was too heavily topped for his light limbs. Hermis was a chunky, compact horse and certainly he did all he was assaked to do.

Thus, while there are many exceptions, as a general thing, the short, heavily-muscled horse excels for speed, while the long muscles are better for a sustained effort—they better bear the contraction resulting from sustained speed. Probably a happy medium between the two is the ideal horse—a horse of the style of Africander. He was the hean ideal of a racer, just tall enough to give length of stride, just muscled enough to give length of stride land; Mortemer and Bolard in France, and Longfellow, Henry of Navarre, Hindoo, Hanover, Sysonby and Salvator in this country.

This letter is not written to exploit a theory, and the fact that examples for and against are given is proof enough of that. All students of racing and breeding are apt to indulge theories at some time in their career, but in the end they find them unprofitable. The fact is the race horse is a complex animal, an uncertain animal. Like a lady, he is a being that has withstood for many generations the efforts of mankind to understand. Science, philosophy and logic are thrown away in the effort. And who shall say we should like either the better if we understood them? The charm of woman lies largely in our inability to understand her; the charm of uncertainty—without which there could be no racing, and hence, no race horses.—W. S. Vosburgh in Thoroughbred Record.

THE PERILS OF TATTENHAM CORNER.

"'If he only escapes accident coming round Tattenham Corner, and secures a good place, he will win,"
"How often has this remark been made by owners of horses competing in the Derby when speaking of the chances of their colts. And what a big "In the chances of their colts." And what a big "In the chances of their colts. And what a big "In the chances of their colts." And what a big "In the chances of their colts. And what a big "In the chances of their colts." And what a big "In the chances of their colts. And what a big "In the chances of their colts." And what a big "In the chances of their colts." And what a big "In the chances of their colts." And what a big "In the chances of their colts." And what is considered the turn round the Corner stands developed the turn round the Corner stands and a little castly bring disaster to half a dozen animals, with sporting life. In the consideration of the difficulties which must be faced by a horse which has to negotiate it at nearly top speed. These difficulties are greatly increased by the fact that the quarter of a mile which precedes the Corner is down hill, and there is reached. The late Harry Constance, who rode in nincteen consecutive Derbys, says of it: "What is known as Tattenham Corner is one of the worst bends I ever rode round or saw. It is not only down a very steep incline, but on a side hill, as well as a very sharp turn, and it is wonderful to me it is not productive of more accidents. The nature of the a jockey easing his horse in rounding the bend, for were he to do so he would stand a great chance of being run into by the horses in his rear. Again, what he had not be sightly to one side he may hirrfere with another animal, and the slightest touch under such circumstants. In the slightest touch under such circumstants, and the slightest touch under such circumstants. In the coloness and nerve shown by the jockeys generally in taking this dangerous hend proves that they appreciate its difficulties, and it is rare indeed

Stakes post, and from here there is a rapid descent to Tattenham Corner.

"The horses come on to the straight course about half a mile from the winning post on ground which falls one in twenty-three and when past the junction of the Great Metropolitan course there is a descent of forty feet to the beginning of the stands. All along this stretch the cross section is very pronounced, the stand side being much higher than on the rails. From the grandstand to the winning post there is an easy fucline."

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 14.—Frequent showers at race time affected the attendance at Lagoon today. Owing to the sticky condition of the track form players were somewhat at sea in the selecting of winners, and only two of their choices scored. Races of the ordinary variety were down for decision, but as the fields were evenly balanced good contention was expected. The appearance of Sevenfull in the third race, at five and one-half furlongs, excited the greatest interest, it being her first appearance in two years. She ruled a strong favorite, but she was apparently far from ready, as she quit badly after running a good half. Ymir, from the Berry stable, made a show of his opposition in the two-year-old allowance race, at four and one-half furlongs, getting away to a flying start and pulling up to his field at the finish.
